(All are welcome, even if you are joining us for the first time.)

We live in rapidly changing times. Within hours of the Brexit vote in June last year, the once proud British pound fell precipitously and dramatically.

What was true yesterday (for many things) is no longer true today. Things we once knew for certain are now shades of memory.

The same can be said of the future. We have no way of knowing for sure in what form it will arrive or if we will feel ready when it comes. Often our inability to know the future triggers an unsettling anxiety within. That's because we're wired to desire certainty and security. But we need not cringe in fear.

A study of the book of Revelation will guide us through our inner worries and anxieties, and steadies us against outside events and powers that threaten to shake our foundations.

Israel's founding in 1948 signalled the beginning of a series of fulfilments of end-time prophecies. This should further strengthen our confidence in the One who reveals His intentions through this special book.

We have already navigated through 13 chapters. Come and join us as we continue our investigative study of the rest of the prophecies, literary forms, imageries, symbolisms, and thematic content.
